Industry Days - Film Premieres - Immersive Experiences
at Galway Film Fleadh and Fair

July 9 - 12, 2025

ie.ambafrance.org

INTRODUCTION

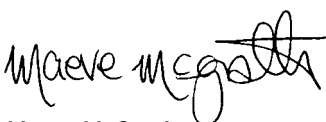

We meet here for the 37th edition of the Galway Film Fleadh, and this year we will screen a record-breaking 44 Irish feature films at the Fleadh. With 12 Irish-language feature films, and a full strand of Irish-language shorts.

Film festivals are incredibly important for filmmakers who need an audience for their film. We welcome the audience, filmmakers and industry professionals that will attend the Fleadh in the coming days. The Fleadh will screen 96 feature films and over 100 shorts. The Film Fair that runs alongside will co-ordinate hundreds of meetings, events and panels. If you buy a cinema ticket for the Fleadh, you support an army of creatives that want to bring the best of Irish and World cinema to your door.

In 2025, the Fleadh will present 46 Irish Premieres, 31 World Premieres and 11 European/International Premieres, featuring work from filmmakers from 44 countries, with 40 debut filmmakers presenting their films in Galway.

We are delighted to rename our Best International Short Drama award in the name of Joe McMahon, founding member of the Fleadh, and a very important member of the Film Community and Galway Film Society. This award will now be known as the Joe McMahon Award for Best International Short Drama.

RE-CREATION

The 1996 murder of French filmmaker Sophie Toscan Du Plantier at her vacation home in West Cork remains one of Ireland's most shocking unsolved crimes. Ian Bailey was investigated by Irish authorities, but never tried in Ireland, despite being convicted in absentia in France. With Re-Creation, co-directors Jim Sheridan and David Merriman deliver a bold fiction-reality hybrid, imagining what might have happened if Bailey had faced trial. The film brings us into the room as a fictional jury sifts through the facts, conflicting stories, and inconvenient truths that make the case so vexing.

Featuring stellar performances, including Vicky Krieps as the lone initial holdout, Re-Creation is a bracing reminder that, when sensationalism threatens to overwhelm, facts and truth remain paramount. World Premiere at Tribeca 2025.

Writers/Directors: Jim Sheridan, David Merriman

Producers: Tina O'Reilly, Fabrizio Maltese

Cast of Shadows examines how Frances Hubbard Flaherty was the person who made all her husband's major films (Nanook of the North to Louisiana Story) happen, and how their three daughters, Robert's brother, and others, played crucial parts in enabling the iconic Robert Flaherty films to be completed.

In this essay film, filmmaker Sami van Ingen shares his own family stories by using previously unseen archival material, and takes the viewer on an in-depth trip through the history of the Flaherty film-making family, and opening the historical landscape of the people who contributed, but have been sidelined by history.

ONCE WE WERE PUNKS

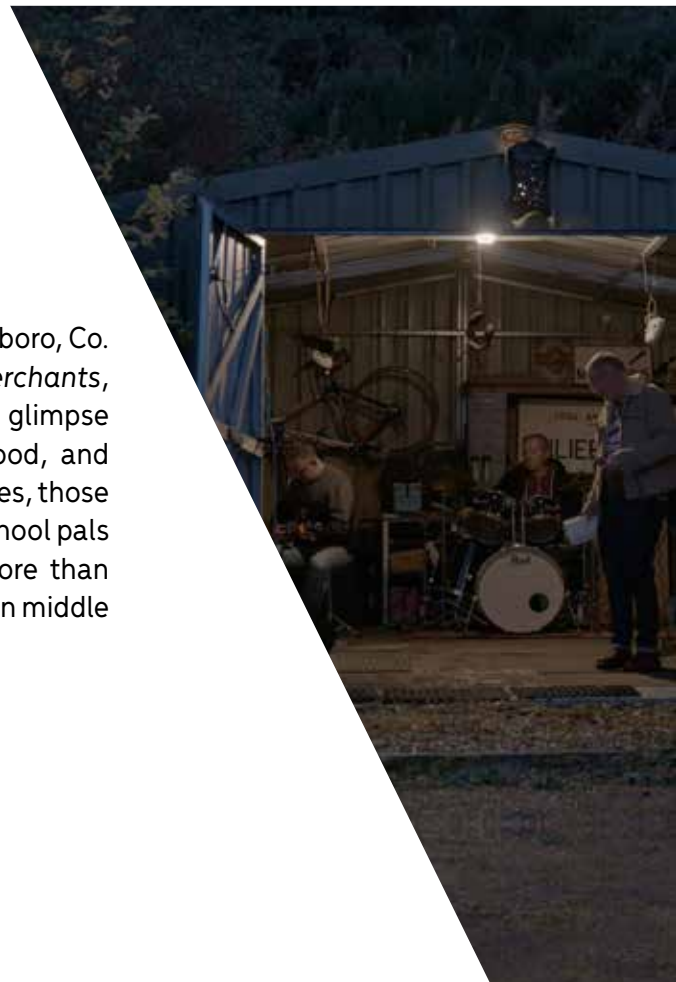

"The Best Band You Never Heard." The ex-punks of Bailieboro, Co. Cavan might say maturity is overrated. As The Panic Merchants, a four-piece in the late 1980s, they caught a fleeting glimpse of the big time. Notions gave way to careers, adulthood, and emigration. Separated by oceans for the past three decades, those barnstorming memories might tenuously connect four school pals across three continents. BATTERSEA

When Lou was 16, she fled her small hometown and never looked back. Meanwhile, her brother, Les, never left. Now, in the wake of their mother's death, and the subsequent selling of the family home, they find themselves face-to-face for the first time in 15 years. As they reacquaint – and drink booze out of old family mugs – they're relieved by how easily they can slip back into old roles, playfully goading each other and testing one another's differing worldviews. But, as the weekend unfolds, the conversations get more complicated.

DO PAINTERS DIE ELSEWHERE

DOKAD UMIERAJA MALARZE

Do Painters Die Elsewhere is an immersive, intimate love story portrait, guided by the artist's life rather than a traditional biographical narrative. It does not follow a chronological retelling of a "great painter's" life, nor does it rely on conventional talking-head interviews. Instead, the film draws us into an emotional mosaic, woven from archival materials that Bolko himself collected – artifacts that once gave him a sense of purpose in moments of doubt.

TEMPTATION OF INFLUENCE

Temptation of Influence is a filmic collage and an essay exploring how architectural ideas are passed down, reinterpreted and – inevitably – misread across generations. Centred on Irish architect Shane de Blacam, it begins in his Dublin study, where Palladio's plates frame Louis Kahn's sketches. From Inishmaan to Rome, from Veneto to New Haven, the film follows a path of conversations, buildings and landscapes – tracing the uncertain mechanics of architectural inheritance. Contributors include Kenneth Frampton, Níall McLaughlin, Sheila O'Donnell and others. In association with AATE (Architecture at the Edge).

ÉIRE AGUS NA CHÉAD NÁISIÚIN

IRELAND AND THE FIRST NATIONS

The incredible untold story of how Irish people interacted with the First Nations of North America, with contributions from some of Ireland's leading historians along with a new wave of First Nations academics and commentators.

Director/Writer/Producer:
Ronan McCloskey

Throughout the 18th and 19th centuries, Irish people are trading and intermarrying with native people and later fighting against them as part of the 7th Cavalry.

Our attitude to the First Nations reflected a deep division within our own psyche. We were both friends and foes, who, having lost our land, settled in theirs. This film looks at the domino effect of colonialism, showing our journey into America from our perspective, and through the eyes of the people we displaced.

MAURICE & I

Maurice & I is a powerful and enthralling exploration of partnership, loss, and the enduring importance of architecture in shaping and enriching our lives. The film celebrates the transformative architectural partnership of Sir Miles Warren and Maurice Mahoney, whose innovative 'brutalist' designs redefined Christchurch, New Zealand, in the 1960s and '70s. Their work, including the iconic Christchurch Town Hall, was nearly erased by the 2011 earthquakes. Through rare archival footage and exclusive interviews, including their final conversation together, the film reflects on their remarkable legacy, the community impact of their bold architectural vision, and their fight to save their finest building from demolition.

SANATORIUM

On the outskirts of Odesa, stands Kuyalnyk Sanatorium. Each summer, thousands of Ukrainians come here, drawn by Soviet-era therapies and the chance to relax beside the salt lake. The biggest attraction though, is the mysterious black mud, said to cure infertility, physical disabilities and other ailments.

Sanatorium takes us through a summer season at this place, following the staff as they work hard to provide care, comfort, and entertainment for visitors – even with the war nearby. For the guests, it's a time to seek healing, love and renewal. Despite the airstrikes close by, there's something about the pastel pink and lime green halls of the sanatorium that keeps pulling people back.

THE SHADOW OF THE GIANT L'OMBRA DEL GIGANTE

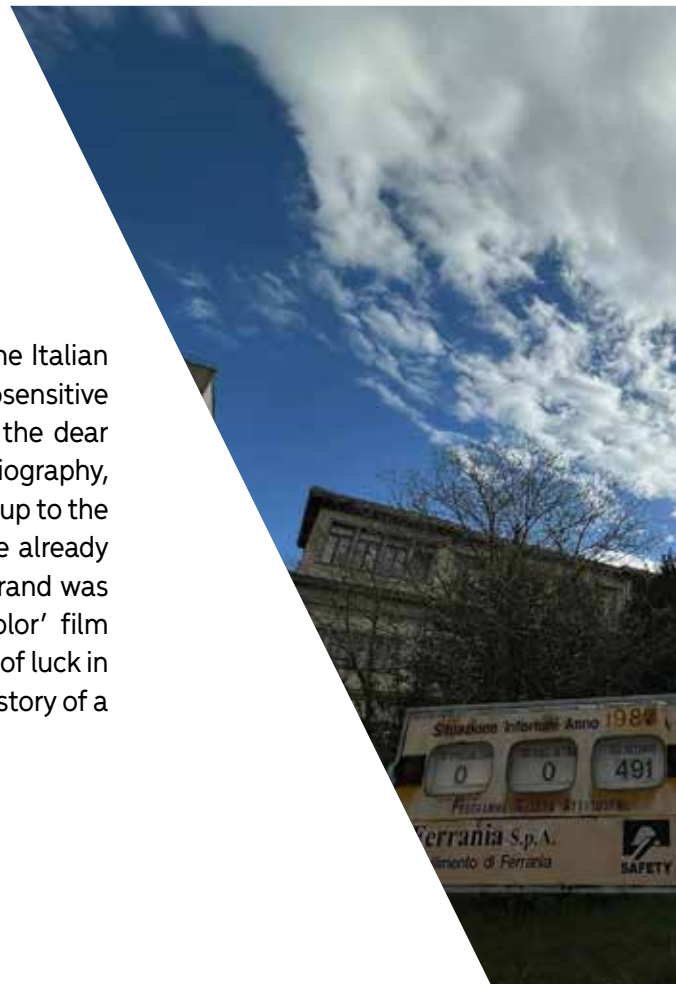

The history, development and vicissitudes of FERRANIA, the Italian factory that, from 1920 onwards, produced flexible and photosensitive image recording media – in more understandable terms, the dear and now defunct film. Film for cinema, photography, radiography, workers' villages, personal and leisure services, lasting right up to the threshold of the third millennium. There was a time, where already in the aftermath of the Second World War, the 'ferrania' brand was synonymous with 'Made in Italy', as the only 'ferraniacolor' film produced in Europe, due to ingenuity, willpower, and a pinch of luck in not being among the factories destroyed. A story within the story of a worker, Achille Schinca, who worked there for over 35 years.

IMMRÁM

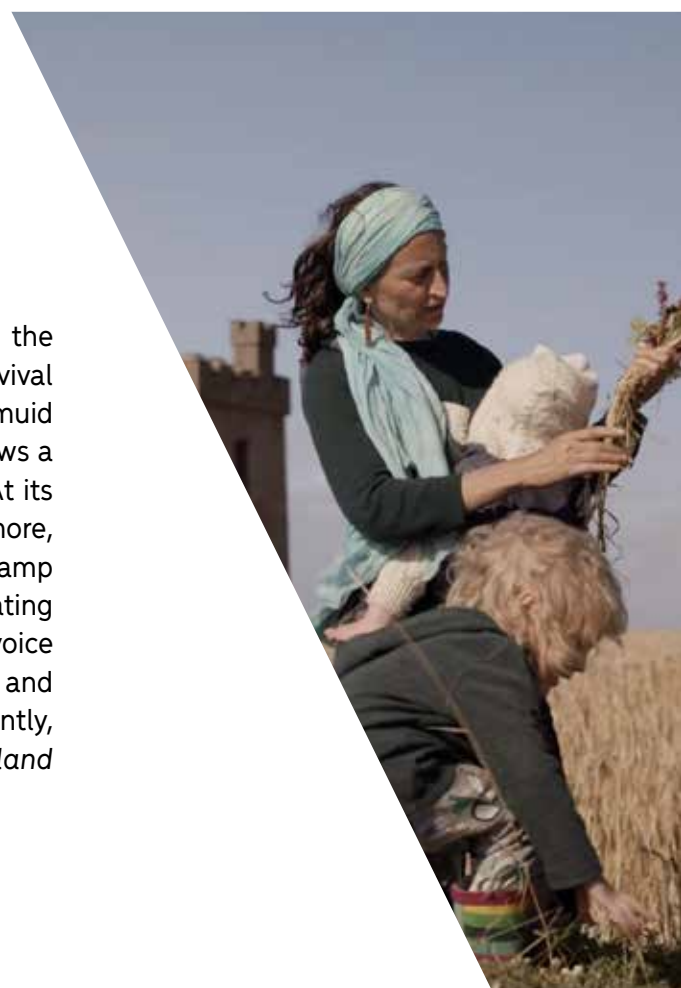

Immrám is an experimental nonfiction film that explores the deep connections between land, language, and cultural revival in contemporary Ireland. Featuring Siobhán de Paor, Diarmuid Lyng, their children, and their wider community, the film follows a journey through pilgrimage, wild retreats, and everyday life. At its heart is a 110km walk led by Siobhán, carrying Tuireann to Ardmore, supported by a group of women and the men who made camp along the way. Diarmuid reclaims hurling beyond the GAA, creating space for reflection and renewal. Guiding the film's spirit is the voice of philosopher John Moriarty, whose reflections on place, myth, and presence echo throughout. Immrám is a film about living differently, rooted in the here and now. LISTEN TO THE LAND SPEAK

Listen to the Land Speak sees Manchán Magan – one of our most acclaimed writers on landscape and language – reveal the profound knowledge and wisdom contained in our landscapes and myths. Filmed over four seasons, the film unfolds from Winter Solstice to Bealtaine through Reek Sunday to Samhain, exploring how the stories and myths associated with the rivers, mountains, and lands around us are crucial to unlocking aspects of how we need to rebuild our relationship with nature today. It also becomes an unexpectedly personal story – as he seeks to help heal society's relationship with nature. Manchán also realises that there is a serious illness within himself that makes him see these ancient sites and beliefs in a whole new light.

GERRY ADAMS – A BALLYMURPHY MAN

Gerry Adams is one of the most controversial leaders of our time. He led his community in the North of Ireland from conflict to peace. Adams was a critical voice in the decision taken by the IRA to lay down their arms after their 25-year war against the British. Imprisoned, and shot, he was demonized and censored by dominant media as a subversive and terrorist, yet the British and their allies were forced to recognize his legitimacy, and negotiate the Irish peace accord, 'The Good Friday Agreement', with him and Sinn Féin. A private man, this is the first time Adams sits down to tell his story – from a teenage activist to party leader. Today, he is an elder statesman supporting the next generations on their path toward Irish unity.
